

Call for papers

Sociology at the Dawn of a Successful Century?

Sociology as a theoretical framework, as a research field, as well as regarding its disciplinary position in higher education has faced multiple challenges in the past decades in Hungary. Global processes of social change, transformations of the Hungarian institutional scenery of social sciences (research centers, higher education) produced heated debates about the role of Sociology in public discourses.

Our conference organized by Centre for Social Sciences aims to create a forum to overview and discussions the state of affairs and role of Sociology in Hungary. The language of the conference is primarily Hungarian, but non-Hungarian speakers are also encouraged to apply, and to present in English.

Applications should be submitted through this link.

Applications should include:

- Name of author(s) and affiliation,
- The title of the presentation
- An abstract (300–500 words) discussing the following aspects: theoretical background, research question, methodology, main results Selection of papers will be based on a blind peer-review process.

Doctoral students applying for the PhD session will be eligible for mentoring in their work towards a successful application and high quality presentation.

Important dates:

- 15 April: Application deadline
- 30 April: Notification of the presenters
- 31 May: Uploading the presentations (full papers or presentations) to the conference system

For further assistance, please contact the organizers at szockonferencia@tk.mta.hu.